EMC Kapolei Teleport

Strategically located in Oahu, Hawaii, EMC Kapolei is a wholly owned teleport facility encompassing 2.7 acres of secure telehouse and data center facilities with six earth stations and the ability to link both the Americas and Asia with state of the art satellite connectivity.

As EMC's Asia-Pacific gateway, EMC Kapolei provides EMC's customers with a direct connection between the United States and Asia for private data networks, IP trunking and video content distribution combined with redundant terrestrial connectivity to the United States, Australia, Hong Kong, China and Japan.

This teleport, along with EMC teleport facilities in Germany and the UK, allows EMC to offer a continuous global C-band footprint to all continents and oceans as well as Ku band coverage in North and South America, the Gulf of Mexico, the Bering Sea and the Aleutian Islands.

Advantages

- Provides access to US and Asian based satellites
- Allows EMC to provide a seamless global footprint for worldwide service
- Access to regional and national fiber optic networks
- Security standards compliant worldwide.
- Teleport site is naturally shielded for RF interference from the Oahu interior.
